

Publishing Jobs and Internship Hunting

Some job searching websites for publishing internships and jobs. Some of these require signing up in order to access job boards.

<http://www.internmatch.com/s/publishing-internships>

<http://www.bookjobs.com/>

<http://www.mediabistro.com/>

<http://www.publishersmarketplace.com/jobs/>

<http://www.publishersweekly.com/pw/jobzone/index.html>

<http://www.summerinternships.com/publishing-internships/>

<http://www.publishingjobs.com/>

<http://www.careerbuilder.com/Jobs/Keyword/Publishing/>

<http://disneycareers.com/en/career-areas/corporate/publishing/>

<http://www.careerrookie.com/jobs/keyword/publishing/>

<http://www.aftercollege.com/browsejobs.aspx?experience=7&postback=true&jobtype=57>

Good links about prepping for job hunting--nice to see how they recommend creating personal websites and blogging! :)

<http://publishingtrendsetter.com/professionalpaths/how-to-get-an-internship-in-publishing-5-tips/>

<http://www.nextavenue.org/blog/perfect-elevator-pitch-land-job>

<http://www.wikihow.com/Argue-Your-Value-As-a-Professional-Writer>

And if you want to do freelance work and wonder what to charge:

<http://www.the-efa.org/res/rates.php>

It's not "writing" anymore. It's content.

Advice: don't just search for jobs in "writing," "editing" or "copy editing" or "proofreading." Those terms won't always lead in the right directions.

Look for jobs in "content marketing," "web content," "content creation/editing/proofreading," etc.